Good Online/Email Communication Practice, German Etiquette and Principles of Good Practice for Students
Email communication with professors

- The content and the formulation of your email should be appropriate
  - do not forget to include an informative subject line
  - start with a greeting using the professor's title and surname (see below)
  - remind the professor who you are
  - stick to the point
  - work on tone and be formal
  - make requests politely
  - read over your email for grammar, use proper punctuation, spell out words, write in complete sentences
  - end the email with a salutation (see below)

- Please use a suitable form of address and salutation (sign off) as well as your signature, e.g.:
  - Dear Professor Müller / Sehr geehrter Professor Müller; Dear Dr. Müller / Sehr geehrte(r) Dr. Müller
  - Sincerely, Kind regards / Mit freundlichen Grüßen

- Some responses may sound rude if they are too short, even though this may be so only because you are short on time. Therefore, it is highly recommended that you take the time to think about how your message could sound to the receiver. Please follow the recommendation regardless of whether your communication partner sticks to the rule or not.

- Ways of communicating considered to be impolite: e.g. putting several punctuation marks one after another, using capitals only.
Tips for a good email communication with the administration are the same as above.

But please note some additional information:

• Please always check first if the information you are looking for is already answered in FAQs (https://www.wi.tum.de/faqs/) or in an Information Sheet (https://www.wi.tum.de/downloads/)

• Please use a suitable form of address and salutation (sign off), e.g.:
  – Dear Ms./Mr. Müller / Sehr geehrte(r) Frau/Herr Müller; Dear Sir/Madam / Sehr geehrte Damen und Herren

Email communication with professors and administration

Dear Ms. Kleinheinz,

I am a new student of Master in Management and Technology program. My matriculation number is 1234567.

I have problems with registration for courses. In some cases TUMonline shows that the maximum capacity is reached. Does it mean I cannot follow this course? Furthermore, I am not sure which courses should I choose and I want to discuss with you my course schedule. I would like to make an appointment with you. Could you please inform me when can I drop by?

Thank you for your time and patience.

Kind regards,
Jon Snow

German Etiquette

Shaking hands
Germans shake hands in formal/professional situations both when arriving and when departing. It is common for a person who is joining a group to shake hands with every single individual. Due to the Covid-19 situation, please refrain from shaking hands with anyone at the moment.

Punctuality & Accuracy
Germans can be extremely punctual. Be 5 to 10 minutes early for important appointments and be sure to call the people you are meeting if you really cannot make it in time. Furthermore, promises are made to be kept!

Du and Sie
Du is an informal and Sie a formal way of addressing to somebody. Please remember to use Sie in your communication with professors and administration. It is polite to address everyone by their family name and Sie. In general: Du + first name, Sie + family name
German Etiquette

Titles
Academic titles belong to the name, such as Herr Doktor Müller or Frau Professor Weise. In communication with professors please use their academic title and their surname. You should say Herr or Frau and the person's title and their surname.

Knocking
When entering an office, it is common to knock first and then enter the room immediately.

Knocking on the table instead of clapping
Students knock on the table after a lecture. The origin for that academic habit is unclear, research is vague and people have different opinions about how it originated.
Principles of Good Practice for Students

The aim of examinations, project works, thesis and any other study achievements is to determine and certify the acquisition of competences. Therefore, for all achievements the examinations regulations apply. Each examination and achievement must be made independent and using only permitted tools. To avoid plagiarism, you need to pay attention on a complete indication of references and correct citation.

- You need to mark every citation and reference (complete and comprehensible)
- Literal citations have to be marked with quotation marks and the reference has to be indicated directly before or after the citation
- Non-literal citations and paraphrases (e.g. explanations, summary in own words) have to be marked, too, and the reference has to be indicated before or after the passage/section
- Use of external images, data, tables, source texts, etc. requires special care, even if they were found in Internet:
  - The authorship of the source have to be indicated complete and comprehensible
  - For the use of images author’s explicit permission can be necessary
Principles of Good Practice for Students

- At the end of your written work, please list all references in alphabetical order in form of a bibliography (§18 Abs. 9 APSO)

- Ideas, outlines etc. from other sources than your written work must also be marked and the reference has to be indicated

- If possible, quote only scientific sources and try to look for primary sources

- Please note, that any attempt of deception or plagiarism can have consequences like failure to pass the examination or deregistration. Examinations and achievement failed due to deception can be retaken only once. Furthermore, it is also a copyright infringement and this can lead to legal consequences.
